Poem

by Julia Corbett
Journalism, Freshman

the likeness of your laughter sounding warm throughout the room plays softly with my memory but cruelly with my mood.

Poem

by Michele Trankina
Zoology, Senior

He knows immediate pleasure as his fingers gently caress the lines of her smooth, curving body.
And, as she moans and whines in perfect time with his words—They become one.
She—numb in vibration—patiently waits then sighs and again they are one.

A man and his guitar.
